- What is an agricultural commission (AgCom)?

- AgComs are committees formed at Town Meeting through the passage of a local by-law.
- Each town can decide what the duties and responsibilities of the AgCom will be. These are outlined in the by-law.
- Under Massachusetts law, communities can create committees at the town level that serve in the interest of that town.

- What does an AgCom do?

- Serves as a local voice advocating for farmers, farm businesses and farm interests
- Provides visibility for farming
- Works with other town boards about issues facing the town
- Helps resolve farm related problems or conflicts
- Protects farmland and natural resources

- Why are town AgComs forming?

Many towns trying to balance growth and quality of life issues are creating AgComs. The intent of an AgCom is simple :protect agricultural lands, preserve rural character, provide a voice for farmers, and encourage agricultural based businesses.

- Who can serve on an AgCom?

Anyone who is a resident of the town is eligible to sit on a town board or commission. However, the by-law created and passed by the town determines the number of members and composition of the commission. In towns with existing AgComs there are several types of members – voting, alternate, and advisory. Each town should decide what type of membership and qualifications are appropriate for their community.

- Does an AgCom cost the town money?

Each town should decide what is an appropriate budget for their AgCom. Existing AgCom budgets range from $0 to $1,000 per year.

- Are AgComs regulatory?

Unlike some other town committees, AgComs do not operate under any regulatory authority from the Commonwealth. While town conservation commissions implement the State Wetlands Protection Act and planning boards enforce the local zoning code, AgComs are created at Town Meeting to represent farming interests in the town - but they do not have any legal mandate or enforcement authority.

- What are some AgComs doing in Massachusetts?

- Adopting local right-to-farm by-law
- Obtaining technical assistance on nonpoint source pollution, conservation farm planning, manure management, environmental stewardship
- Raising monies for farmland protection and economic development
- Starting local farmer's market
- Providing mediation and conflict resolution on farm related disputes within town
- Collaborating with other town boards on development proposals
- Holding educational workshops on intergenerational transfer of property,
- Chapter 61 lands, farm viability, and Agricultural Preservation Restrictions
